Part of Variety in abundance: discovering the Languedoc's Côtes de Thongue

Drinking Window: 2022 - 2025

A pure Cinsault vinified as a white wine with no skin contact at all. Light in colour, with quite a stony nose, and a certain weight on the palate, with some satisfying mouthfeel and good balancing acidity. They wanted to make a white wine, but simply did not have enough white grapes as they had been frosted, but there was some spare Cinsault. As former lawyers, all their wine names have a legal link: Hammurabi was the Babylonian king who laid down the first legal code around 4,000 BCE / BC.
